Grant Supports Science Program for Area Children

SCRANTON – The United Neighborhood Centers-Bellevue Center recently got a boost from MetroAction’s Child Care MicroGrant program. A $500 grant allowed UNC to establish a science center to teach more than 80 children about fossils, gems, rocks and other interesting science. The MetroAction Childcare MicroGrant program awards ten MicroGrants each year to improve the quality of childcare in eight counties throughout northeastern Pennsylvania. Pictured at the grant presentation are, from left, Desiree Ranella, MetroAction; and Michael McHale, United Neighborhood Centers-Bellevue Center.
